LASTING IMPACT: what endures?

CNI/ARL Workshop, May 2016
culture, relationships, and ethos

Bethany Nowviskie

image credits: Rutherford Appleton Laboratory | Docubyte & Ink
1. stop thinking about “faculty”
—start thinking about seekers and scholars.
2. don’t stop at interdisciplinary
—foster interprofessional and intersectional work.
3. time and agency are key to genuine partnerships and real intellectual community.
4. soft money

breeds a culture of precarity.
5. one size

never fits all.
6. work against the impulse to polish, hide, and hoard.
7. collaboration

—is a seismic (re)shift.
8. understand difference to foster positive change.
9. embrace ephemerality

—while you steward scholarly interventions.
10. the ethos of a center evolves, expands, and endures.
partnerships and publications

Harriette Hemmasi